LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY NEWSPAPER IN NORTHEASTERN CALIFORNIA

65th Year, Number 34 | Truckee, Nevada County, California, Thursday, October 19, 1933 | Established 1869

STATE CAPITAL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Governor Rolph believes in the use of the national guard only as a last resort.

Throughout the California agricultural strikes the governor maintained his confidence in the ability of local officers to keep order and refused to call out the guard until sheriffs admitted their inability to cope with their local situations.

At the same time Rolph demanded that the peace officers take drastic steps in disarming persons not legally authorized to carry firearms.

California's relief of destitution program soon will be given new impetus. Funds from the recent sale of $6,000,000 worth of state unemployment bonds will soon be available for allocation by the state to county relief organizations. The remainder of the $20,000,000 bond issue will be offered for sale at some future date.

One of California's most famous prisoners, Warren K. Billings, who, with Thomas Mooney, was convicted of the 1916 Preparedness Day bombin in San Francisco, at last has applied for parole. For 17 years both of the men have steadfastly refused to consider anything except a full pardon on the ground an application for a parole would be a tacit admission of guilt. Billings, however, finally changed his mind. "All I want to do is get out of prison," he said.

Proponents of the great central valley water project have completed an organization with which to fight the referendum against the project coming up for a vote on December 19. The group is headed by Senator J. M. Inman, Sacramento. Pat D. Nowell, Tulare, was elected field manager, and A. E. Goddard, Sacramento, treasurer.

Reports that petitions seeking an initiative against the sales tax are illegally drawn and that they are being misrepresented has prompted Rolland A. Vandegrift, state director of finance, to ask attorneys to investigate. Vandegrift said it had been reported the petitions were being circulated with the aid of claims that no other tax would replace the sales levy if it should be repealed. "Impossible," commented Vandegrift. "The state must pay its bills."

Governor Rolph is growing more stern in his attitude toward crime and criminals. Despite numerous petitions and pleas of attorneys he ordered C. D. Cooper, alias Ben M. Jones of Los Angeles, returned to South Carolina where he is accused of having escaped from prison.

JUDGES VOW TO ENFORCE MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—Telling it to the judge is not as easy as it used to be.

Indications that California justices and municipal judges are more than ever before inclined to a strict enforcement of motor vehicle laws were seen today in statistics released by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

They show that of the 72,000 persons brought into court during the first six months of 1933, all but 3,800 were convicted.

Alibis and excuses failed to win leniency and those convicted paid fines in excess of $398,000.

In addition, 1,621 were sent to jail for varying terms and seventy six, charged with serious crimes, were held to answer by the superior courts.

A majority of the offenses involved either speeding or reckless driving.

Arrests for the first half of the year exceeded arrests of any previous like period by more than 5,000.

Fines collected went to the road funds of the various counties. Under the California law courts are required to return abstracts of all cases to the headquarters of the California Highway Patrol.

"We are much gratified with the cooperation we are receiving from California courts in the punishment of motor vehicle law violators," said Director Theo J. Roche.

'34 LICENSE PLATES BEING ASSIGNED TO VARIOUS COUNTIES

Applications May Be Submitted By Mail On And After December 1st

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—The Department of Motor Vehicles today announced the assignment of nearly 2,000,000 pairs of passenger automobile license plates to its branches in the various cities of California for the convenience of the motorists when the annual license renewal starts January 1st.

In addition nearly 200,000 sets of commercial vehicle, motorcycle and trailer plates were assigned to the same offices.

The plates will be delivered as rapidly as possible by the manufacturers and stored until the counters are thrown open.

The same colors will be employed on 1934 plates as are used this year except that they will be reversed with the background of orange and the letters and numerals of black. The same style of block lettering will be employed.

The word California will appear at the top of the plate instead of at the bottom.

Registrar Russell Bevans announced that while the official renewal season would not start until January 1st, it would be possible to submit applications by mail on and after December 1st.

Of the passenger car plates, 450,000 pairs will be kept at Sacramento to handle the tremendous volume of mail applications.

SANTA ANA, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Escapes' 'over the roof" will become a lost art in Orange county in a few months. The criminal attempting to "go over the top" will receive a surprise when he is confronted by the jailer taking a stroll around his penthouse on the roof of the building.

Bids for the construction of a penthouse are now being received by Orange county officials.

The jailer's apartment will consist of two bedrooms a living room, breakfast room, kitchen and bathroom.

LIONS CLUB DANCE WAS BIG SUCCESS

The dance held on Saturday night by the Lions Club proved to be a great success and was well attended.

The Masonic Hall had been decorated for the occasion under the direction of Wm. Englehart Jr., and brought forth much favorable comment. The side shows were all well patronized with the stellar attraction being Harry Baldwin as "Stella."

Jack Wallace of Hobart Mills was awarded the $5 prize for the best hard times costume.

The Lions appreciate the generous support given them by the town people and the Hobart Mills people who were well represented at the dance.

The proceeds of the dance are to be used for the charity work of the club.

CO-EDS GET FACTS OF LIFE IN MUSICAL ROMANCE OF COLLEGE

"College Humor," Paramount's elaborate musical-comedy version of college life as it ought to be, will be shown at the Donner Theatre next Saturday and Sunday night.

"College Humor" is a new-style musical comedy—a picture in which the music, the comedy, the dances and the other characteristics of the medium are part of the plot, instead of extra scenes thrown in at random.

It's the story of a campus where co-eds learn the facts of life more readily than mathematics and science; where reputations are made on the gridiron and lost in boudoirs; where kissing replaces calculus on the curriculum and professors croon to their classes. It's a crazy, boisterous story, without a great deal of sanity, but that's just what it is intended to be.

HOME LOAN ACT TO SPEED LIQUIDATION OF CLOSED BANKS

Thousands Are Now Waiting For Dividends From Insolvent Institutions

Benefits of the operation of the Home Owners' Loan Act are many and varied. It has developed during he last sixty days that one of the most important of such benefits will be the speeding up of the liquidation of national and state banks whose doors have been closed during the last three years.

Importance of the Home Loan Act in liquidating financial institutions was stressed recently by a receiver of one of the largest defunct financial institutions in California.

Every banking institution, this man pointed out, has mortgage loans on its books, and such loans during the heyday of prosperity provided regular and definite income for the bank. But when the financial debacle took place, when employed persons found themselves out of jobs, when the savings of such persons became exhausted, these home loan mortgages ceased to be "prime assets.'

Payments on both interest and principal to the institution stopped, taxes and assessments were unpaid and the property immediately became a liability. Foreclosures followed or were threatened.

But here another problem faced the executives of the financial institutions. The cost of foreclosure proceedings are high and in addition, the mortgagor is given a year's period of redemption, during which he can occupy the home without cost to himself while the mortgagee must foot the bills for maintenance and assume the depreciation costs that accrue.

Then came the passage of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 and later its operation began to be felt. The financial institutions found a method of ridding themselves of the home mortgages that had ceased to be assets, accept Home Owners' Loan Corporation bonds that can be converted into cash, and thus speed the return of the depositor's money which has remained so long in the form of "frozen assets."

Throughout the state of California thousands upon thousands of citizens who are waiting for dividends to be declared by insolvent institutions will find that the Home Owners' Loan Act has come not alone to assist distressed home owners but will aid in the completion of the work of liquidation and thus return much more quickly, the savings of these people.

STOCK CARRRIERS ARE REQUIRED TO REST AND FEED ANIMALS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Motor carriers of livestock must see that the animals are fed watered and rested periodically, the motor vehicle department warned today.

A new law passed by the last legislature, the department pointed out, requires stock carriers to stop after not more than 28 hours and attend the animals, giving them at least five hours rest.

Another section of the law empowers the department of public works to build livestock trails parallel to state highways and post signs leading to them.

SPECIAL SESSION IS ASKED TO ADVANCE UPSTREAM STORAGE

Washoe county commissioners have formally asked Governor Fred B. Balzar to call a special session of the legislature so that the county could be authorized to issue $800,000 in bonds for upstream storage on the Truckee River.

Under the resolution passed by the county commissioners last Thursday, the county would bond itself for $800,000 and borrow the money without interest for a period of 40 years from the reclamation service and to acquire sites, construct reservoirs, dams and ditches and "whatever else may be necessary in obtaining upstream storage."

1933 FOREST FIRE LOSS MUCH LESS THAN IN 1931-32

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—In distinct contrast to the tremendous loss suffered by Oregon, its sister state, California has survived the worst of the forest fire season with comparatively little loss.

In fact, up to September 1 the loss was only $99,713.45 as compared to $110,503.84 in 1932 and $889,012.93 in 1931.

"Much credit must be given to the members of the CCC Camps who have been used by state forest rangers, not only to fight fires on state protected areas but to assist in fighting blazes within national forests," said M. B. Pratt, state forester.

"There have been many fires on state protected areas that have been fought by crews from camps located within the national forests and national parks, all of which has contributed to a fire record this year."

HARRY ENGLEBRIGHT PREDICTS SUCCESS FOR WATER PROJECT

Says Refusal To Accept Such Aid To Recovery Would Be Unthinkable

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—Declaring that ratification of the Central Valley Water Project will put $170,000,000 in federal money into immediate circulation in California, re-vitalizing the state's industrial life and bringing long-term employment to thousands now jobless, Congressman Harry L. Englebright of Nevada City today predicted overwhelming success for the program at the special election December 19th.

"California has the greatest opportunity of any state in the entire nation to benefit under the public works program of the federal government, due to the magnitude and desirability of this project," said Congressman Englebright.

"When the voters know the full measure of their opportunity, and realize that the program will be financed solely with federal funds, without a dollar of cost or debt to California taxpayers, there can be but one answer.

"Refusal to accept such a tremendous aid to rapid and sound recovery, entirely apart from the splendid water conservation aspects of the project, would be unthinkable!"

Congressman Englebright, who worked hand-in-hand with Senator Hiram W. Johnson and former Congressman Phil Swing in behalf of the great Boulder Canyon project, emphasized that the Central Valley project, coupled with the Colorado River development and the Metropolitan Acqueduct, will largely solve the water problems of the entire state.

"Southern California, Northern California, interior California, and in fact, all California will share in the benefits of this program," declared Congressman Englebright.

"In addition to the irrigation and flood control features of the project, improved navigability in the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and its salinity control benefits, this program will make available electric power at reasonable rates, within the means of California farmers, home-owners and industries.

"And all this, let me repeat, will not cost California a penny. The entire sum of $170,000,000 required for the project will be advanced by the federal government—$43,000,000 as an outright gift! Under the law, the bonds are to be retired entirely from the income of the project. Under no circumstances can these revenue bonds become a debt on California taxpayers, or any county, or city or district, or the State.

"Yet a total of $170,000,000 will be put into immediate circulation in California, going into all lines of business and industry and providing jobs for more than 25,000 unemployed for at least three years.

"The Central Valley Project fulfills all requirements set up under the national recovery act. It is economically desirable and useful and it has a great social value, through its possibilities, for relieving unemployment.

"In short, the background in Washington is extremely favorable. Washington awaits the vote of California voters and California should roll up a majority for the project which would leave no possible doubt of this state's position."

"MACHINE GUN" KELLY

By United Press

"Machine- Gun" Kelly may have been a bold, bad bandit, but he also was exceedingly dumb, in the opinion of many California editors.

This dumbness was glaringly exhibited, they say, when he sought to defy Uncle Sam and thought he could get away with it.

The Santa Rosa Press-Democrat believes "'Machine-Gun' Kelly is having a chance to make good his boast that 'no prison can hold me,' but he doesn't seem to be making much headway with his plan of escaping, whatever it is. Since his arrest without a struggle in Memphis he has been chained in his cell, like the wild man he represents himself to be."

"This is a big country," states the San Francisco News. "The unthinking might believe that it is easy for one to lose himself in it. Not at all, especially when the person sought is as dumb as Machine Gun Kelly. A hard beast of the jungle he may be. But the government secret service is just as hard when aroused. And that's the way the secret service ought to be. And that's the way the whole government ought to be, when dealing with men of the Machine Gun Kelly type."

"Kelly is the cold, deliberate, ruthless type of criminal," according to the El Centro Imperial Valley Press. "There is little that can be said in his favor. He has ruled by terrorism and violence. The law cannot deal with him in the same manner for to do so would put it down to his level. But it can keep him in jail and it can put him in prison. He has been there before, but when he goes the next time, he should be placed there for keeps."

Kelly finds he is not as smart as he thought he was, said the San Francisco Chronicle, adding:

"That is the way with the outlaw. He thinks he is cleverer than the person he robs, the friends of his victims, the men whose business it is to apprehend him and put him where he belongs. On occasion it would appear that he is. Then Uncle Sam steps in and knocks his impudence galleywest. The gangster discovers who is his boss."

In the opinion of the Marysville Appeal-Democrat, "Kelly has left a trail of crimes that sets him apart as one of the real badmen of the west. Not only that but he has repeatedly defied authority, on occasion leaving his fingerprints purposely as the trademark of his misdeeds. It is such criminals as this that half-baked young fellows are inclined to regard as heroes and to emulate."

Commenting on conviction of others for the Urschel kidnaping, for which Kelly was arrested, the Salinas Index-Journal said:

"Under the laws of the state in which the crime was committed the maximum penalty is life imprisonment. Two of these men are known as killers. There is little doubt that some day an attempt to free them will be made. That attempt will, in all probability, cost the life of some prison guard or other person. This is a striking example of the need of capital punishment. If these men were executed society would be better off, and other men inclined toward desperate crime would pause before they took the chance that might lead to the gallows or electric chair."

HOME-SEEKING MILLIONS

The president of the National Union of Building and Loan Associations believes that 1,000,000 families now doubled up with relatives will return to homes of their own within the next twelve months. If his estimate is right, it is very good news for everybody concerned, including the families who have been living in uncomfortably close quarters.

It is good news for landlords of property now idle. It is good news for real estate dealers and the construction industries, for purveyors of food and furnishings, and so on. The movement has already begun, but it can be helped along.

One way to help it along would be for building and loan associations to maintain a policy of leniency. It is better to increase loans for modernization and repairs than to foreclose a mortgage and spend a lot on renovating and redecorating, only to have the property stand idle for some time until forced to rent it or sell it at a sacrifice.

Today is the day, but that does not mean you should forget the lessons learned yesterday, and not plan well for the coming of tomorrow.

Happiness is one thing you don't have to go around looking for. If you are entitled to it it will come to you.

ROUGH GOING WITH THAT PASSENGER

CALIFORNIA CANYONS

The oak and sycamore-filled canyons are the most beautiful of the Southern California canyons; though the soft, chaparral-walled canyons would, in some lights, press them hard for supremacy of place. Nobody will ever, by pencil or brush or pen, fairly render the beauty of the mysterious, undefined, undefinable chaparral. Matted, tangled, twisted, piled, tufted—everything is chaparral. All botany may be exhausted in describing it in one place, and it will not avail you in another. But in all places, and made up of whatever thousands of shrubs it may be, it is the most exquisite carpet surface that Nature has to show for mountain fronts or canyon sides. Not a color that it does not take, not a bloom that it can not rival; a bank of cloud cannot be softer, or a bed of flowers more varied of hue. Some day between nineteen hundred and two thousand, when South California is at leisure and has native artists, she will have an artist of canyons whose life will be spent in picturing them—the royal oak canopies; the herculean sycamores; the chameleon, velvety chaparral; and the wild throe-built, water-quarried rock gorges, wtih their myriad ferns and flowers.

At the head of Cooper's canyon are broken and jutting sandstone walls, over three hundred feet high, draped with mosses and ferns and all manner of vines. I saw the dainty thalictrum, with its clover-like leaves, standing in thickets there, fresh and green, its blossoms nearly out on the first day of February. Looking down from the heights over the whole of the ranch, one sees for the first time the completeness of its beauty. The eucalyptus belts have been planted in every instance solely with a view to utility—either as wind-breaks to keep off known special wind currents from orchard or grainfield, or to make use of gorge sides too steep for other cultivation. Yet, had they been planted with sole reference to landscape effects they could not better have fallen into place. Even out to the very ocean edge the groves run, there purples and greens, melting into the purples and greens of the sea when it is dark and when it is sunny blue—making harmonious lines of color, leading up from it to the soft grays of the olive and the bright greens of the walnut orchards and wheat fields. When the almond trees are in bloom, the eucalyptus belts are perhaps most superb of all, with their dark spears and plumes waving above and around the white and rosy acres.—From "Glimpses of California," by Helen Hunt Jackson. (Boston: Little, Brown.)

Dissolving Indebtedness

THE subject of debt looms large on the mental horizon of today. Quite apart from the manifold questions bound up with the consideration of war debts, those sad legacies of strife which so greatly concern the nations at this time, there remains the fact that many individuals are facing a situation in which their assets seem inadequate to meet the liabilities they have incurred. Often, as a result of depreciated currencies, they see the value of their possessions continually diminishing, and begin to question the stability they once accepted as a fixed standard.

It is helpful to examine Jesus' utterances on debt in the light which Christian Science throws upon them. The first mention occurs in the prayer which he gave to his disciples in response to their request that he should teach them to pray. The Master's words, "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors," are wonderfully illuminated by the spiritual interpretation which Mary Baker Eddy has given them in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 17): "And Love is reflected in love."

Love, then, is the primary solution of this question of debt—the love of God for His children reflected by them to one another. Jesus evidently saw the need of amplifying this subject in a way that would be easily understood by his hearers, for he later expounded it by means of a parable. He told them of a servant who owed a vast sum which he was apparently unable to pay. At his earnest request, however, his lord forgave him this debt. We read that this servant then went out, and finding a fellow servant who owed him a comparatively small amount "took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest." And disregarding the debtor's plea for patience, he cast him into prison. Their lord, however, became cognizant of the situation and withdrew his pardon, requiring the creditor to pay his own debt.

It is interesting to notice that neither of these debtors protested his inability to pay or asked for the amount to be reduced. They both prayed the creditor for patience, promising to pay the full amount owing. In the first case it is recorded that his lord had compassion on the servant and forgave him his debt; while in the second the creditor took his fellow servant by the throat, or, metaphorically speaking, established such "a strangle hold" upon him as to render it impossible for him to free himself. It is clear that the mental qualities of patience and compassion extended to one who is in difficulties reassure and help him to win his freedom, while a cruel and unmerciful attitude of thought only tightens his bonds.

When we realize that all the love and devotion of which we are capable we owe to God, who is Love and the very source of all being, the meaning of the parable becomes apparent. Our obligations to God can be fulfilled only in the measure of our love and compassion for our fellow men. The mental "strangle hold" of hatred, misunderstanding, envy, or pride expressed in our thought of our brother will hinder him from giving us the appreciation which we believe to be due from him, and from restoring that which he owes. If we fail to reflect the love of God to all about us, the channels of our own capacity to give will become blocked with selfishness and self-seeking. Paul writes, "Owe no man any thing, but to love one another," and Christian Science teaches its students that this debt of love must be paid by each and all who would find the unfailing stream of spiritual supply.

Primarily, then, what is needed both by nations and by individuals today is the compassionate understanding which refuses to accept an erroneous viewpoint of either a debtor or a creditor. We are all debtors to God. And as we begin to lay down our sense of personal possession, the tight grip which fastens on matter and material possessions will become less stringent; and in the proportion that we entertain divine ideas the proper means of liquidating our material obligations will become apparent.

There is great need of clarifying our thinking, and refusing to accept a mesmeric suggestion of annoyance or fear which would distort our viewpoint of one another. Thought must be lifted to perceive the infinitude of spiritual ideas, which are always at hand to supply the human requirement. To Jesus the demand of the tax collector or the need of the multitude presented no difficulty, because he knew so well the all-embracing nature of his Father's love. He obtained what was necessary, so conscious was he of what Mrs. Eddy has called "the deific law that supply invariably meets demand" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 45). But would this have been the case had he allowed his thought to become clouded with resentment toward any of those with whom he was associated?

The patience and compassion so continually manifested by Christ Jesus are needed today in full measure; and in addition to these the quality of steadfast trust and assurance that our Father will open to us the way to meet our human obligations. Mrs. Eddy has made the inspired statement that "the right way wins the right of way, even the way of Truth and Love whereby all our debts are paid, mankind blessed, and God glorified" (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 232).—The Christian Science Monitor.

Politically Speaking

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Regardless of what they thought of the sales tax originally, members of the Rolph administration are pulling for it to come through the threatened repeal storm and well they may.

Even with the sales tax bringing in as much as may be expected reasonably, State Controller Ray L. Riley estimates the deficit at around $48,000,000.

While falling revenues and other things outside Rolph's control contributed, in part, to the situation, it does offer fine election year ammunition, particularly when the $30,000,000 surplus with which Rolph started, is taken into consideration.

Appointment of a man to fill the vacancy on the state board of prison terms and paroles still appears a long way off. Stockton is split between Warren Atherton and C. P. Rendon, Stockton attorneys.

Rolph still favors Atherton as a result of the influence of Jack Brennan, director of the department of military affairs. Despite this he threatened to get mad and look outside Stockton to fill the position.

Brennan, incidentally, appears to be the current white-haired boy with the administration. The governor consults him frequently. Even so there still appears no one in the administration who can speak right up for Rolph.

Necessity of filling the vacancy on the second district appellate bench left by the death of Presiding Justice Lewis R. Works, may lead to several other appointments in Southern California. In such cases Governor Rolph has usually followed the practice of "promoting" a superior judge, and then filling that job from the municipal bench.

Gus Johnson, it appears, is having a hard time convincing his friends he is in the gubernatorial race to stay . . . Lt. Governor Frank Merriam has been looking over his nose at Johnson for assertedly starting the report Merriam was "too old to run for governor" . . . those Royal "R" automobile license plates have proved so popular that Rolph is going to have 1,000 of them in 1934 . . . he first thought 100 would be enough to go around . . . the last thing the governor wants to do is call the legislature back to Sacramento . . . he still remembers the last one . . . now that Warren K. Billings has applied for a parole there will be a lot of interest in meetings of the state board of terms and paroles.

COLD WEATHER MAKES BEAUTY A VERY DIFFICULT PROBLEM

By JACQUELINE HUNT

STAYING pretty during the chilly weather seems to be a real problem to many of you. "As soon as it gets cold," one woman writes, "my skin becomes chapped and red." Another says, "You may talk of what sun and wind will do to nice hair and hands, but what about frost and wind?" My hair gets dull looking and causes me all sorts of trouble as soon as winter comes and my hands are terrible." Several of you say that your skin immediately becomes sluggish and blemishes appear. Shame on you!

MISS HUNT

The weather is snappy, to be sure; but it is invigorating if you will only take advantage of it, and many of your beauty problems are caused by bad health habits. You are just too lazy to get out and do something about keeping yourself healthy and lovely throughout the winter.

Of course it is more difficult to maintain your lovely skin and pep during the colder weather, because you have more to contend with. First of all you are indoors so much more of the time. No more delightful week-ends in the country or at the beach. Instead you spend so much more of your time in artificially heated rooms and stale air. You are occupied with your housework or with your business during the day and when the early evening comes you amuse yourself by sitting in stuffy theatres. Even the clothing you wear allows you less freedom—your pores have less of a chance to function normally and your muscles become lax and sluggish.

If you wish to preserve your present attractiveness and freshness, you must take steps to do so immediately. Plan your daily program so you will get at least a half hour of outdoor exercise daily. Fresh air will do wonders when it comes to clearing your skin and ridding your system of fatigue poisons. You can keep your body in trim by getting out of bed a few minutes early and going through a brief routine of calestenics before an open window to fill your lungs with clean air and stir up your circulation.

After the exercise have a shower. There is no better preventative for common colds than to toughen and tone your system with a daily cold shower, but if you can't stand it cold, start with tepid showers and see if you can't take them colder and colder each day.

Dry your body thoroughly with a rough, Turkish towel rubbing briskly until the skin tingles and feels warm. Dust with talcum or have an alcohol rub to close the pores, dress and eat a leisurely breakfast. The habit many girls have of dashing to their offices without stopping for breakfast is an injurious one. Nothing can give you more energy and enthusiasm for the work waiting for you than a good breakfast to set you up.

Walking home from your office at night is another measure by which you can get your daily allotment of fresh air and exercise. If it is too far to walk all of the way, try walking at least part of the distance. Walking is the best all round exercise there is. Besides it gives you a chance to practice good carriage and to compose weary, jumpy nerves.

Man Has 'Ace in the Hole'; Is Asked To Leave Town

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Even an "ace in the hole" may be a source of embarrassment, Barney Sumpter, negro, admitted.

The judge was a bit skeptical. Barney pulled a packet of papers from his pocket—and an ace of spades fluttered to the floor. He was permitted to leave town.

PACIFIC COAST TO SEE FAMOUS BRITISH TRAIN

Great Britain's most famous passenger train, the "Royal Scot," which has been on exhibition at the Century of Progress, is now on a tour of the western states and will arrive in San Francisco October 22, according to announcement just received here.

During its two day stay in the bay city, it will be on display at the Third Street station of the Southern Pacific from noon to 10 P. M. the first day and from 8 A. M. to 5:45 P. M. the second day.

The 8-car train of the London, Midland & Scottish Railway, one of England's four great railway systems, is handled by the locomotive "Royal Scott," and the equipment represents the latest developments in European passenger train facilities. First and third class coaches and sleeping cars are included in the train, with an electric "kitchen" car as a particular feature.

Operating between London and Glasgow over a portion of the oldest railroad in the world, the "Royal Scot" is known as "The Train with a Tradition." For 71 years trains over this route have left the two terminal cities at 10 A. M. every day, without a break in the service.

The exhibition in San Francisco was arranged by the Southern Pacific, Western Pacific, Sante Fe and Northwestern Pacific.

AIR CONTAINERS ADD TO SAFETY OF TIRES

By equipping their tires with air containers, thousands of motor car owners are now keeping pace with automotive progress, according to the Tourist Garage, local Goodrich dealer. These containers are used to avoid blow outs and punctures.

"They are really insurance against trouble, eliminating 90 per cent of all tire ailments and actually adding more than 25 per cent in tire mileage," they explained.

"Goodrich air containers are one of the most progressive developments in the tire industry. They solve the problem of puncture and blow out dangers in a way we would have believed impossible several years ago.

"They seal punctures on running wheels, have a patented cork insert which enables them to close punctures permanently. They assure added safety because chances of blow outs are practically eliminated."

Nothing In A Name!

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—No, there's nothing in a name, according to local police court officials.

When the clerk called Al Bino to the bar, a negro, with skin as dark as ebony, presented himself before the judge. The charge was vagrancy.

He was just "floatin' through," he informed the court, and was handed a "floater" to aid him on his way—in lieu of 30 days in jail.

Highway Department Awards 86 Contracts Since August 22nd

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—California now is experiencing one of the most extensive highway building campaigns in the history of the state.

Records of the state department of public works show that in less than two months, work orders calling for the expenditure of more than $7,000,000 have been issued.

Specifically, since the high-speed program was inaugurated August 22 in keeping with the national recovery program, the department has awarded 86 contracts totaling $7,257,830. And additional calls for bids are under preparation.

In keeping with the department's slogan to have "50,000 men at work by Christmas," every possible short cut is being taken to speed up actual work on the various projects.

At a recent bid opening, Eric Cullenward, deputy director of public works, urged that every effort be made to get men and equipment on the jobs and asked bonding companies to reduce the time in underwriting bonds.

"For our part," said Cullenward, "we are cooperating by awarding contracts within a day or two after bids are opened, speeding up the acceptance of bonds and approval of contracts, cutting all red tape tending to delay the beginning of work on all contracts."

This plan of speeding up work at this time is considered of particular importance inasmuch as a large part of funds spent on public works goes for labor thus reducing unemployment.

Under state requirements this labor is enlisted directly from local community aid rolls so that every public works dollar may go where it is most needed, officials said.

HISTORIC BUFFALO SKULL HAS MESSAGE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, October 19—(UP)—A buffalo skull bearing the message of Brigham Young, Mormon pioneer who led his people into the great Salt Lake valley in 1847, telling parties to follow his trail westward, was presented to the Latter Day Saints (Mormon) Church museum by the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce. The skull, one of a few original "bulletins of the plains," will be kept on exhibition to thousands of tourists visiting the historic museum in the Mormon temple block house here.

Homeless Children In Great Demand Says Latest Report

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—The demand by foster parents to adopt homeless children continues to exceed the supply by a very large margin.

Such was the report submitted to Governor Rolph today by Rheba Crawford Splivalo, director of the state department of social welfare, who pointed out that paradoxically, adverse economic conditions have increased the demand for adoptions.

Records of the department show 897 adoptions for the 1932-33 fiscal year, including one in Nevada county.

Reduced incomes, Mrs. Spivalo believes, have forced many couples to refrain from traveling and other social activity which they formerly preferred to raising children.

"It has made many persons remain by the fireside, with a consequent degree of loneliness which has brought a realization that true happiness may be achieved by having children about the home. This type always meant to adopt children, but just never found time before to get around to it," Mrs. Spivalo said.

Under the state adoption law, administered by the social welfare department, exhaustive investigations are made of the physical and moral character of children placed for adoption, as well as the fitness of potential foster parents to assume this responsibility. In addition, two agencies, the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and the Children's Home Society of Los Angeles are licensed by the department to conduct adoption cases and investigations.

As a result of these investigations the department found it necessary to refuse 110 applications during the year.

"In many cases," the report explained, "petitions have been filed by persons who have not given the adoption of a child serious thought as to how the child would adjust in that particular new home, or how the home would adjust to him."

LOAD OF WOOD SOLD BY NEW METHOD

YUBA CITY, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Absenting himself from his home proved an effective method of selling a load of wood for Gus Karnegas, Sutter county rancher.

Friends noticed a truck loading the wood while Karnegan was away and took the license number. When Karnegas returned he reported loss of the wood to the sheriff and the license was traced to a San Francisco firm.

Explaining their truck driver had driven into the wrong yard, the company promptly forwarded a check in payment for the wood.

BARNYARD FOWLS GO IN FOR HITCH-HIKING

COLUSA, Cal. October 19—(UP)—Barnyard fowls in Colusa county seem to have gone in for hitch-hiking.

Driving into Stonyford from their ranch eight miles distant, Willard and Summer Paine, paying a visit to Fred Ross, were somewhat surprised when a large Plymouth Rock rooster also alighted from the car. The bird was one of their own flock.

A few days earlier a hen was noticed riding on the bumper of an automobile passing through Stonyford.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them." These words from the Book of Revelation will comprise the Golden Text which will be used in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, next Sunday.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunady, October 22, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., will be "Probation after Death." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." (I Thess. 4:13, 14).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Jesus' unchanged physical condition after what seemed to be death was followed by his exaltation above all material conditions; and this exhaltation explained his ascension and revealed unmistakably a probationary and progressive state beyond the grave." (p. 46).

ONLY ONE LIQUOR CASE ON FEDERAL DOCKET

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—What to do with "holdover" liquor cases, if and when the 18th amendment is repealed, isn't cause for much worry around federal offices here.

Plans recently were announced by Washington officials for the review of liquor actions awaiting decision after the expected discarding of national prohibition becomes effective. Thousands of such cases still remain on court calendars, it was said.

In federal court here, however, only one liquor case is left on the docket.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 19—(UP)—Kicking the wife's shins may serve to avert a faux pas at the dinner table, but it doesn't win any leniency as the chief item in a police court complaint here.

Police Judge Will J. Carraghar sentenced Shea to 30 days in the county jail.

Opening a can of condensed milk, Hill poured the contents into the fluid container. The brakes worked.

But, improvement in the smell along the lake shore wasn't particularly noticeable.
